LIGHTNING HITS GULF OIL TANK

Firemen Prevent Spread; Loss Reported Small

Lightning struck an 80,000 barrel tank at the Gulf Refining company's plant this morning at 1:45, setting fire to its contents.

Firemen employed on the grounds rushed to the scene almost with the inception of the blaze and prevented the tongue of flame from leaping to other side of other oil receptacles which stand at close intervals all over the Gulf yards.

The large oil tank was half full at the time, according to a report given out by officials of the company this morning, but the fire-fighters succeeded in checking the blaze before it gained considerable headway. Damage was reported as being very light.

During the fire, which was extinguished at 4 o'clock, there was a strong wind which accompanied rain struck the tank and lifted the roofing off. None of the men at work fighting the blaze was hurt.

5 ARE VICTIMS IN HOTEL FIRE

Woman and Her Three Children Trapped

HOMESTEAD, Pa., Jan. 22.—Five persons were burned to death early today in a fire which destroyed a small hotel owned by Thomas W. Davies on Duquesne street.

The dead are:

Mrs. John Winick, 15, and her three children, David and William, twins, 8, and Catherine, 13, and Davies, proprietor of the hotel.

The fire started in the kitchen of the three-story frame hotel building and rapidly ate its way to the twenty bedrooms on the second and third floors.

Ten persons were forced to flee in their night clothes.

The bodies of Mrs. Winick and her three children were found huddled together in their third floor apartment. Their escape had been cut off by the dense smoke and flames coming from the ground floor.

John Winick, the husband, made frantic efforts to rescue his family, but was forced back each time by flames from the stairway and windows.

SEEKS TO LINK KEY IN MURDERS

Coco Believes They Were Found on Lake Bank

WITNESS TALKS

Denies Hearing Anyone Warned to "Shut Up"

COURTHOUSE, BASTROP, La., Jan. 22.—The state of Louisiana today entered upon the final chapter of its attack on the forces of lawlessness that have ruled Morehouse parish and are held responsible for the barbarous murders of Watt Daniel and Thomas F. Richards.

Simultaneously with Attorney General Coco's statement that the state's investigation thus far showed that the Klu Klux Klan was responsible for conditions in Morehouse parish, it was learned that detectives other than those of the federal department of justice are at work in this section, investigating from the standpoint of those accused of the murders and other crimes, all the evidence that has been presented publicly.

Was in Poker Game.

W. C. Wagster, called as the first witness today was questioned about conversations reported to have occurred after the Daniel-Richards murders. He denied having heard anyone warned to "shut up and let the matter die out." He told of being in the poker game at the Daniel home with Richards and Watt Daniel, on the night an alleged attempt was made to assassinate Dr. B. M. McKoon.

S. I. Bennett, general manager of the Southern Carbon Company, was the next witness. He told of returning from a trip the day after Harold Teegstrom, missing witness, disappeared. He also told of visiting J. Jeff Burnett, a former carbon plant employee, while the latter was in the Bastrop jail.

Master Keys.

Bennett was shown a bunch of keys by the assistant attorney general believed to be from a bunch found on the banks of Lake La Fourche the day following the mysterious dynamite explosion. He said the key was similar to the master meter house keys. He said the key shown him was not now being used. Bennett told of notifying the sheriff about Teegstrom's disappearance but declared he knew nothing about the matter.

Bennett's testimony dealt in most part with the disappearance of young Teegstrom and other related matters. He failed to identify a leather strap fastened to the key ring produced by the state's attorney.

"I think that the bunch of keys the negro, Simmy Harris, lost," the witness said.

Simmy Harris had quit the plant sometime ago and turned his keys to the meter house but had on a previous occasion lost a bunch of keys, which were never found, the witness stated.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—President Harding remained in his room at the White House today, abandoning his intention to return to his desk in the executive office.

COLD WAVE

20 Degree Drop from 50 Forecast at 2:45

With a drop of 20 degrees predicted for Port Arthur within the next 36 hours, a cold wave due to sweep the entire Texas coast and Southern Louisiana was announced at 2:45 this afternoon as being on its way.

The extreme drop in temperature is expected to bring the thermometer to the freezing point—the first this winter in Port Arthur and along the Texas coast.

Storm warnings were hoisted along the coast at 1 o'clock this afternoon, according to Observer Carson here. A moderate northerly gale is expected for tonight.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—John Janninides, well known in the United States as representative in the Near East of Washburn-Crosby and other flour companies, was hanged by the Turks, according to an official Near East relief dispatch from Smyrna.

Phil Anthropy Finds He Was Mistaken When Blonde Calls

By PHIL ANTHROPY

As I promised, I today deposited in a Port Arthur bank $1, which is to draw 4 per cent compound interest until Jan. 22, 1923.

Two thousand years from today, my dollar, with accrued interest is to go to the prettiest girl living in Port Arthur.

When I announced in Sunday's News that I would make the deposit, I said that I thought the $1, with accrued interest, would amount to about $20,000,000 by 1923. Today I was greatly humiliated when E. S. Tucker, cashier of the Merchants National bank, called. He said:

"You're all wet on your figures."

"Says which?" I asked him, fearing that I had been overly enthusiastic in computing the earning capacity of that $1.

"Why," says he, "$20,000,000 will be only pure change stuff for the girl who gets your deposit and interest."

I gasped for air as Tucker handed me a paper upon which was written: "One dollar compounded at 4 per cent for 2000 years would amount to $11,870,423,821,000,000,000,000,000,000,000."

In 430 years, $1, in compound interest would amount to more than $20,000,000."

Tucker worked it out by logarithms, whatever that is.

Strikes Begin in Ruhr

MINERS GO OUT IN TEST OF WILLS

Heart of Rich Fuel Region Stilled

WORKERS SULLEN

French Discredit Reports Of Troop Movements

By United Press.

The heart of Germany's richest fuel region was stilled today in passive protest against French invasion.

Test of Premier Poincare's reparations policy was on.

Mines of the Ruhr valley were idle in protest against France's occupation; against arrest of state officials; against the presence of police with bayoneted rifles at the shaft heads; and against the severing of all of the arteries connecting the Ruhr with the rest of Germany.

French Move Troops Back

The strike started on schedule; besides the state mines, seven Thyssen holdings and other private pits ceased operation. Miners lounged about, sullenly eyeing the French troops.

The first French move was one of conciliation. Here Ahrens, director of the state mines, whose arrest precipitated the strike was freed; troops moved back from the mines and were withdrawn from the Essen branch of the Leichsbahn.

But in Paris, Foch and the French cabinet met and planned new military and economic moves to overcome Germany's passive resistance.

Report of German troops moving near the Ruhr, and of secret uprisings, again were in active circulation. General Ludendorff, now reported at Munster. The French war office lacked confirmation of these rumors and discredited them.

Disastrous Policy.

The test of wills in the Ruhr was said to depend largely upon endurance of Germany's industrial leaders, Thyssens and others, who held the key to the situation because of the financial aid they are now furnishing the striking miners. If this were withdrawn the workers would be forced to dig coal or starve, and France counts on this outcome.

English Lad on Way Home After Month in Port Arthur Jail

After a month's sojourn in America, spent for the most part in the city jail, Joseph Gilbey, 16 year old English lad, is today on the British steamship Melania, bound for Merrie England.

The boy's father will be waiting on the docks at Southampton when the Melania arrives there, and will take the boy back to his home in Hull, immigration officials here said today.

Gilbey was landed at Sabine about December 22, because he "acted strange" on the voyage, according to skipper of the vessel he had been working on. Agents for the vessel tried to get the boy back to England, but Gilbey wanted to stay in America. He got to Port Arthur and was lodged in the city jail. Finally, through the efforts of Major William Crossland, British vice-consul, and immigration officials, arrangements were made with Captain R. W. Thompson, of the British steamship Melania, to take Gilbey back to England.

Complete and final plans for the rousing pep meeting Thursday night at the Plaza hotel to precede the 1923 Chamber of Commerce budget drive for $30,000 were made this noon by the YMBL steering committee.

George N. Bliss, chairman of the finance committee of the Chamber of Commerce will be chairman of the evening. Bliss is scheduled to give a talk during the course of the evening on "1923 needs of the City of Port Arthur" to be followed by President Harry Barker who will discuss how best the Chamber of Commerce can meet these needs during the coming year.

400 Are Expected.

Short talks will be made by Munroe Hall, Dr. Muriel Bledsoe, Howard Smith, Henry Maitre, Joe Williams and Fred J. Dodge.

Music for the evening will be furnished by an orchestra. It is expected that around 400 Port Arthur citizens will attend the banquet. "Guests" are on the chamber, no cost being assessed each individual member attending. Secretary Roy Stump has already sent out about 600 invitations, incidentally reminding the members that if they don't get there early enough they might not get in the kitchen since there will not be extra room in the dining hall.

Team Captains and "Crews."

Team captains and workers selected by the committee yesterday follow:

E. P. Baker, captain; C. M. Dickmores, G. C. W. Wells, O. G. Westmoreland, R. C. Ellis.

POLLY AND HER PALS, COMING IN THE NEWS; PA PFRKINS SAYS "MY STARS" CAUSE IT'S STERRETT'S BEST CUSSWORD

HERE'S A LITTLE LIGHT ON CLIFF

But He Has the Crab: Stopped for Queer Abodes

BY TAD

You know Cliff Sterrett, the bird who draws Polly and her pals. Well, there's a lot of you who haven't seen him. You've saved yourselves a lot of worry.

I've seen him and I've known him for 10 years, but he's as much of a mystery to me right now as an income tax blank is.

His name is Curley.

Cliff is a short, chunky guy, built like a wrestler. I think he used to tote bales of hay in his youth. He has curly hair and wears tortoise-shell choppers.

He lives on Long Island.

He picks out the queerest points to live in that you can imagine.

I don't know whether it's on account of his past or not, however, he has the hermit crab stopped as far as finding queer abodes goes.

Once he lived in Lynbrook, L. I. No one but a tax collector could find his house there. Later he moved to Hempstead, L. I., and bloodhounds were needed to get his joint. Now he lives in Garden City, L. I., and if you're not heeled with road maps and a surveyor's outfit and a compass, you'll never find the joint. It took King Lardner and myself three hours one night to get back to Great Neck, which is eight miles away.

Talks a Queer Lingo

Not only is Sterrett a queer guy as to houses, but his language is odd, too. Gosh all Friday, it's queer.

When you meet him he says: "My stars, gosh, I'm glad to see you." He tells you what a fine car you have (whether it's an open coupe or not) and wants to make you right at home immediately.

When you get inside his little old-fashioned home he'll say: "Heavenly days, sit down, won't you, and I'll get some music going."

His family are all musicians, but they play on instruments that no one in the world ever heard before.

His wife plays a two-piano. His son Paul plays a violin that has one string and a photograph horn attached to it. His brother Paul fiddles a ukulele that is built like a butter barrel and Cliff himself plays on a saw with an violin bow that holds about 20 strings. And the songs—when January 1 they were favorite.

He Ozark mountains before sitting Bull sat down. It might be good music. I can't swear that it isn't, but anyway you get an awful kick watching the orchestra work.

The Musical Dog

Right in the middle of the Ozark Anthem the day I was there a dog as big as a Shetland pony came into the room and started to mow an accompaniment to the piece.

Sterrett never smiled. He seemed to be on the square with it. We couldn't tell whether he was trying to give us the gate or entertain us. We sat and worried.

After three or four pieces he rugged up a few shots of what he called "Whaler's Twilight."

We don't know whether he grows the stuff it's made of or gets it from an unknown source. It's a pip. On the way out we thought we had won our hats. Our skulls didn't seem to fit our skinners.

Yes, Do Happen Around!

"Happen around again," and he said Cliff.

"Happen around again," and he smiles that sheepish smile.

I thought of that old saying, "You can't take a lick out of the county, but you can't take the county out of a lick."

The Language, the music, the musical instruments, the walk and all, got me.

I don't know whether he's kidding the boys or not. He must go inside and laugh himself into a howl when his visitors go.

He's a Chief Seal of the art department, that's a fact.

I have a sneaking suspicion that he's kidding the bunch of us, and if he is he's a nip. He hasn't changed his act in 10 years. I'll have to "happen around again."

Walsh Claims Raid of Communists Followed Officials' Conspiracy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Frank T. Walsh, labor attorney, today made an effort to show that the raid at Bridgman, Michigan, last August when more than 20 alleged communists were arrested, was the result of a conspiracy on the part of the department of justice and the American defense society.

William M. Burns, head of the Bureau of investigation of the department of justice, Brigadier General Amos Fries, chief of the chemical warfare section of the army, Mildred Morris, a newspaper worker, and G. E. Harris, general agent of the department of justice, were questioned by Walsh, who was taking depositions preliminary to the trial of William Z. Foster and the other alleged communists in Berrien county, Michigan.

Legislative Side Lights

BY HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
News Staff Correspondent at The 38th Legislature

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 22.—Two years ago, during the lifetime of the 37th legislature, Representatives Lee Rountree and John E. Quind, with the assistance of Representative Lee Satterwhite, came to the conclusion that Texas needed a new constitution. They went to the bar and they lost. All three are members of the 38th legislature, and Rountree and Quind are in a joint resolution in the opening days of the session of the 38th legislature. Representative Lee Rountree and Hon. Hendricks shot in another resolution. Now the co-authors and the friends of the new constitution are said to be getting together. They say that the matter of calling a new constitution will be submitted to the voters of the state at the next general election which will take place in January, 1924.

A favorable report has been submitted to the house by the committee on constitutional amendments. Rountree and Quind say they have harmonized their differences with Moore and Hendricks and the others, but this will not prevent any amendment being offered by members of the lower house when the measure is taken up for consideration. On course it will go to the senate from the house and there will come the real test of it. It is a matter of course, gossip that Attorney General Keeling hinted that the legislature could not call a constitutional convention and thus led to a change of heart on the part of Rountree and Quind.

Maybe in 1925

If the program is successful, there will be a constitutional convention in the year 1925 on the subject of the new constitution. The Eastern district has returned to Austin from his old home town. He says that more than 1200 of his constituents notified him of their opposition to a constitutional convention and only one declared himself in favor of it. The membership of two live business men were among those who were opposed to a new constitution at this time. The young senator who is known as Fighting Joe in the west says he is going to "show to the will of his people," which means that he is going to vote against the calling of a convention.

Parks for Children

There are 400 entrepreneurs in Texas. They have a legal right to it. The name of the former Representative P. R. Parks of Dallas, Agent of the state, is a two-fold one. One will be introduced in the senate and the other in the house. These call for a law to give a board of seven members to regulate the parks and the entrepreneur school. Chris are not much more than. They are neither the pull nor the kick. They are students of the science of anatomy. They say all that they ask is the same legal recognition and protection afforded to the other professions of the state. What is known as the law injunction bill has been introduced. This has the backing of those who employ the knife or the pull in carrying all the ills that the flesh is heir to. This bill has alarmed the assembly. They are flocking to the city to see that the lawmakers do not put them out of business.

This is a funny old world. In the long ago came the Christian Science leader and reader. These who represent the established order of things appealed to the lawmakers to put the Christian Scientists out of business. They were denounced as quacks and a menace to the public health. They were then given regular fellowships ever since. Then came the sect of theosophists. They were given the lot and of the poker for a time. They

GERMANY WAVES WHITEWASH FOR THANKS TO U. S. FERGUSON POPS

To Present Note to Allen as Troops Embark

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Governor many is about to make another gesture of friendship to the United States in the present Ruhr crisis.

When the American forces move this week from the Rhine a note will be presented by Germany to General Allen, commander of the troops and sent to the state department here, thanking and praising the government for the conduct of the American forces at the Cologne bridgehead.

Other important developments in the international situation here today were:

1. Secretary of State Hughes authorized the United Press to deny flatly that he was in disagreement with President Harding or Ambassador Harvey regarding the European policies of the government and that he had no intention of resigning.

2. Italy's move toward mediation of the crisis in the Ruhr between France and Germany, made to the American government and to the various European powers, seemed unlikely to succeed.

Legion to Rescue of Adjutant General In Senate Attack

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 22.—Continuation of the nomination of Adjutant General Thomas D. Burton to have opposition in the senate and Senator Joe Burdett, of Eastland, is accredited with being the leader against a second term for Burton, who was overseas during the war and who won the distinguished service cross for heroic service in the Argentine. American legion leaders are assembling here in defense of Burton. The crisis in the fight against Burton is expected to be reached Thursday.

Opposition is also developing against the confirmation of one member of the state industrial accident board.

$1,400,000 IS TEXT BOOK COST

Neff Expresses Confidence In Commission

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 22.—In a special message to the legislature today Governor Neff expressed full faith and confidence in the present state textbook commission, and explained in detail the action of the commission in changing certain textbooks at a cost of more than $1,000,000.

The governor declared it to be his firm conviction that they were at all times honest, sincere and true to the trust reposed in them.

Details of the two meetings of the textbook commission since 1921, including the December, 1922, meeting at which the recent changes were adopted, are given by the governor. The book purchases were made with a five year period in view, the governor said.

A Tremendous Task

"In considering the initial cost to the state not only in the purchase of the geographies, but in regard to all the changes made, it will cost the state during the next year approximately $1,400,000 for the new textbooks," the governor said. "It should be remembered, however, that in supplying the 1,000,000 school children with all the necessary school books the state has undertaken a tremendous task and one that necessarily entails a vast expenditure of money, whether new books be supplied or the old one retained, for necessarily the old books must be replaced as they wear out and become discarded. In considering the financing of such a gigantic program was the state book bill presents, one should not take a short sighted view."

Long-Time Investment

No money is to be paid out for the books from present available school funds, the governor said, as no money on these contracts will be paid out after the beginning of the next fiscal year, September 1, 1923. He pointed out that while a large sum of money will be paid out in the fall for new books, the investment is made for a number of years. The governor further declared that each contract made had, as to form and legality, the endorsement of the superintendent of public instruction and the attorney general.

The governor asked the legislature to consider whether the present method of selecting the textbook commission membership is the wisest; whether the state should change books to take the place of the previously selected; should books be changed gradually; whether the textbook commission followed the law in making its recent changes or do violence to its discretionary powers.

Replies to Critics

"Another important question submitted was whether the law should be changed so the legislature could review the commission's contemplated purchase of free textbooks and pass on them."

Governor Neff replied to his critics in regard to the textbook changes by asking whether the governor should be an ex-officio member of the commission.

For Raw Sore Throat

At the first sign of a raw, sore throat rub on a little Musterole with your fingers.

It goes right to the spot with a gentle tingle, loosens congestion, draws out soreness and pain.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. It has all the strength of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

FIRE VICTIM'S FUNERAL TODAY

Beaumont Woman Died in Flames Burning House

BEAUMONT, Texas, Jan. 22.—Funeral services for Mrs. Irene G. Walker, wife of Dr. Clyde H. Walker, dentist, who was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the Walker home, 2488 Park avenue, early Sunday morning, will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon from the residence of Mrs. Walker's mother, Mrs. Maud Granger, 615 Cartwright street.

Indications are that Mrs. Walker was overcome by fumes from an oil heater in the bath room, and in falling upset the heater. First Chief Steve O'Connor said today, Dr. Walker, who was asleep in an adjoining room, was awakened about midnight by the fumes of smoke in his room. The flames spread from the overturned heater and the house and contents were practically totally lost.

WAREHOUSE TO BE REBUILT

BRENNHAM, Texas, Jan. 22.—At a largely attended meeting of stockholders of the Washington County Warehouse Company it was decided to rebuild the warehouse recently destroyed by fire. The work of rebuilding will be completed in time to handle the fall cotton crop.

The One-Man Woman

Dan Ward's Past
By Ruth Agnes Ebeling

BEGIN HERE TODAY

KATE WARD, widow of DAN WARD, living with her father, JUSTIN PARSONS, has a visitor, CHINATOWN ALICE, who says Dan was father of her child.

Dan was father of her child, DOROTHY. Kate naturally is deeply perturbed. Then, in the stillness of the night, a voice whispers to her of mysterious things, which could she find it, would prove to contain the story of Dan's past. A few evenings later, near their home, Kate and her father find an unconscious man, victim of an auto crash. They carry him in. He recovers, gives his name as

JAMES LATHAM, and presently tells Kate he loves her. Kate, torn between her old affection for Dan and yet fond of Latham, does not know what to do. She tells her woe of the "voice" and its message, and Latham exclaims, "I know where that trunk is."

GO ON WITH THE STORY
Kate Ward stared at the man he said her. Had she heard aright? And then he repeated it.

"I know where that trunk is," he said slowly. "I am sure I do, if there's a thing to any of this."

"Tell me about the trunk," Kate's tone was half a whisper. She was frightened. It always had been a question to her whether she had been asleep and dreamed of the voice and its strange message, or whether there really had been a visitation bordering on the supernatural.

She was startled by James Latham's confidence.

"There's a story connected with that trunk," Latham's voice was reminiscent. "It's a little flat thing—as small a trunk, I think, as I've ever seen. It's in an old shack on the river bank, unless the shack has been dismantled and the trunk stolen by boys or tramps. The last time I saw it was three years ago."

"It was then that Dan Ward was sitting on the floor beside it," Latham said. "Ward and my older brother were close friends. They had this little fishing lodge and for a number of years spent every week end there. If I'm not mistaken, the place belonged to Dan."

"By the way," Latham broke off, "have you ever looked among his papers to see if he happens to have a deed to a small plot of land along the river bank?"

"No," said Kate. "I never imagined he owned anything but the clothes he had on his back, his car and enough money to keep us going until his next client showed up."

"AREN'T YOU GOING TO FIND IT?"

"Right over you to look that up," continued Latham. "I'm almost sure it belonged to Dan."

"Occasionally my brother used to take me to the cabin with him. On this particular day Dan was there when we reached the place. He had this little trunk open on the floor beside him, with his clothes strewn out. I remember his having in his hand a packet of letters, possibly four or five envelopes, not more than that."

"We started to joke about them," continued Latham, "and Dan seemed to resent it. It seemed that there had been a girl and my brother knew it. That was probably three years ago—before you were married?"

The implied question startled Kate. She had been thinking of the girl and the packet of letters.

"We were married eight years ago," she said, and instantly regretted it. There was pity in the look Latham bent on her. He didn't attempt to go on with the story.

At length Kate said: "Aren't you going to finish?"

U. S. FUNDS FOR WAR ON WEEVIL

McAdoo Recommends Federal Appropriation

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 22.—Federal appropriations adequate for the purpose of financing a campaign that will entirely eradicate the boll weevil, from southern cotton fields, was recommended by William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury here yesterday, as the solution to the agricultural problems confronting the south.

"The Southern farmers and states in the cotton belt are laboring under a great handicap," he said. "The solution of the whole problem lies in the appropriation by the federal government of funds adequate to apply the knowledge that has been gained by exhaustive experiments both on the part of the state and of the government."

GARY OFFICIALS TAKEN BY PROS

75 Arrested Under Federal Indictments

By United Press
GARY, Ind., Jan. 22.—United States marshals today arrested high officials of Gary, including the mayor, sheriff and other law enforcement officers on charges of violating the prohibition laws.

Seventy-five were taken into custody under indictments returned at Indianapolis.

Mayor Russell O. Johnson, one of the first to be arrested, was released on bond. L. H. Olds, sheriff, Lewis Barnes, former sheriff, and now president of the Gary board of public works, and Clyde Hunter, former prosecutor, were also taken in the federal agents' net.

Attorneys, marshals, constables, justices of the peace and other officials were arrested.

Sunday Attacks Stand Of Gompers on Beers
KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 22.—"If all Sam Gompers can do is to sneer at the Volstead act, he ought to resign his job," Billy Sunday, evangelist said in a sermon here.

Sunday declared that the head of the American federation of labor, "is just a naturalized Englishman who is trying to run this country. But he will never get wine and beer. There are enough good men in the federation of labor to keep it from coming back."

REINSCH, FORMER U. S. MINISTER, NEAR DEATH
WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, former U. S. minister to China, a certified ill at Shanghai and is expected to have a cable received today by Mrs. Reinsch from the American consul there stating:

He is suffering from a tumor on the brain and an operation will be performed by the surgeons of the Rockefeller Institute in China.

7 ARE DEFENDANTS ON CHARGES OF GAMING
Seven complaints of gaming were lodged against white men arrested about 10:30 Sunday morning when Deputy Sheriff John Dote raided a place in the 1000 block on Houston avenue. Pending a hearing on the complaints, the men were released on bonds.

LABOR TO FIGHT CITIZENS' BODY

Plan $3,000,000 Fund to Prosecute Ozark Vigilantes

HARRISON, Ark., Jan. 22.—A three million dollar fund to prosecute the "citizens' committee"—the new government in Ozark Hills—was sought today by labor organizations.

The fund will be used to arrest and convict vigilantes guilty of the hanging and deportation of scores of other striking railroad workers, according to the Federated Shoprats of Port Smith, where the gigantic prosecution plan was launched.

Every shop union in the country will be called on to set aside one percent of earnings of each worker during the next thirty days for the fund.

Labor also will fight constituted officials who are members of the "citizens' committee," according to reports here. Prosecution of these officials will be sought, it was reported.

7 RUSS REFUGEE SHIPS MISSING

Were En Route From Shanghai to Manila, P. I.

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 22.—Fear for the safety of seven Russian ships, carrying several hundred Russian refugees, reported en route here from Shanghai, China, was expressed today.

Although fifteen refugee ships were reported to have arrived at Lingayen Gulf, 10 miles from Manila, reports here were that seven others should have reached the gulf.

The ships originally were held at Vladivostok by the soviet government. Their crews, seized them and took them to Shanghai with some 800 refugees from Siberia. They were refused landing at Shanghai and started for Manila, where the advance guard arrived Saturday. An American destroyer has gone to Lingayen Gulf and will escort the fleet to Manila, where it will be held pending an investigation and orders from Washington.

House Committee Ok's Resolution Calling For Probe of Oil Autocracy

AUSTIN, Jan. 22.—The Winfree resolution calling for a joint house and senate investigation of alleged control by the Standard Oil of a number of Texas producing and pipeline oil companies was given a unanimous favorable report by the house committee on commerce and manufacturers today.

The resolution charges that the Standard Oil owns a controlling interest in the Magnolia Petroleum company, Humble Oil company, Sinclair Oil company, Gulf Production company, Prairie Oil and Gas company and others.

SAID ALLIGATOR WAS PLAYING WITH CHICKS

HOUSTON, Texas, Jan. 22.—"There's a friendly looking alligator out there playing with my chicken," Does anybody want him?" this over the phone sent the dog catcher to the address where the report was found to be true. Wandering alligators are very scarce in this section.

ORANGE SEAMEN ANGRY AT SHOOTING OF GULLS

ORANGE, Texas, Jan. 22.—Seamen here are indignant over the wholesale shooting of seagulls. Numbers of the birds have been found shot to death. Boatmen who enjoy watching these birds say they will look that the birds are not molested again.

PRINTING PLANT BURNS

PIEDMONT, Texas, Jan. 22.—The printing plant of the Frost Star, owned by Woodson & Norman, was destroyed by fire with a loss of about $4,500, with $3,500 insurance. A linotype machine owned by J. P. Kelly was also destroyed. The building was owned by Mrs. Ross. The Frost Star will publish the statement of Woodson & Norman for the present.

TREASURE BOX FOUND TO HOLD REAL BEER

LITKIN, Texas, Jan. 22.—A treasure box was discovered by work men excavating for a building here. The box contained 13 bottles of real Leap beer. It gave evidence of having been buried for a long time.

BUSINESS HOUSES ROBBED

BEVAN, Texas, Jan. 22.—Thieves broke open the store of Gus Baude at Benchley and robbed the store and the postoffice, which is located in the same building. The postoffice safe other doors were smashed, but the inner doors were not opened, and the government loss was small. In the store, $4 in cash, a lot of gloves, cigarettes and other small articles of merchandise were stolen.

14 NEGROES ARE FINED $13.90 EACH BY JAMES

Smiles of relief and grins about "getting off light" were wiped off 14 negroes' faces when Constable Tom Wells explained to them that fines of $1 and costs in justice of the peace courts amount to $13.90, the constable declared today. The 14 darkies were arrested about 11 o'clock Sunday night by Constable Wells when he raided a poker game on West Seventh street, and fines of $1 and costs each were assessed by Justice of the Peace W. F. James when the negroes plead guilty to complaints of gaming.

A Progressive Chamber of Commerce Will Greatly Aid Port Arthur's Progress

This Year's Drive for More

Members and Larger Subscriptions

Must 'Go Over Big'

With millions of dollars being spent in Port Arthur this year, the city stands on the threshold of the greatest era of progress and opportunity known in its history.

Three years ago Port Arthur astounded the nation by its tremendous gain in population (190%) and greater and much larger cities doubted the authenticity of the census bureau's figures. Today these figures stand out as a mark for others to strive for. But Port Arthur is not through growing. It has only begun. One of the city's largest industries has just announced that over 1000 families will be added to our present population when present expansion is completed. Our present population is said to be in excess of 33,000, and before another year rolls around the figures will be nearer 40,000.

It is a proven fact that in fast growing cities, some agency other than the city administration is needed to watch and guide municipal progress in order that full benefit will be derived by the citizenship at large.

The Chamber of Commerce with its rapidly expanding bureaus headed by experts in their work, has already done much that has benefitted the city at large. Only recently the traffic bureau after hard and consistent work succeeded in securing a change in freight rates which meant a saving of thousands of dollars to Port Arthur industries merchants and individual citizens. The chamber is ever on the lookout for new industries, to locate in our midst.

Its grain department is recognized up and down coasts and by shippers of the middle west as one of the most efficient anywhere. This work must go on if Port Arthur is going to "keep her place in the sun."

1923 will be a crucial year for Port Arthur. The Chamber will be needed—it must extend its every effort. You will be needed, you must help to the utmost. "Get in and Cash in."

Congressman Harry M. Wurbach has arranged with the department of agriculture to distribute Lone Star cotton seed to the cotton farmers of the Fourteenth congressional district. Congressman Wurbach appears to know the value of publicity and distribution. Having won two congressional terms he is planning to win another and with half the democrats of San Antonio behind him, no doubt he will be successful. San Antonio democrats go in gangs. They never vote in blocs.

Harry Sinclair defies the right of the United States senate to probe his books. He was warned by Senator La Follette along these lines, "We have a way of obtaining these records, if you do not wish to produce them." This is interesting. Is there any man in America above the law?

Representatives from Dallas county have introduced eight banking bills. This may help some but will the enactment of these bills compel delinquent tax payers to help to fatten the state treasury?

Two of the largest copper mines in the world have been consolidated, and now the Chile which has the greatest ore reserve is the property of the Anaconda with John D. Ryan as chairman. This consolidation required a $150,000,000 as trading capital, and makes the Anaconda Company the largest producer of copper in the world and the owner of the largest beds of copper ore in the world. Twenty years ago John D. Ryan was a brilliant barrister in a northwestern state. Now the Guzenbergs have parted with their holdings and Ryan and his associates are the copper kings of the universe.

France is in the Ruhr to remain and now the scow of Europe are predicting that France and England and Russia are the coming great powers of Europe. Less than six months ago the same scows predicted that Russia was on the verge of dissolution. It is different now. It is well to recall that America entered the World War to prevent future wars. There is another war coming in Europe. It is impossible to hold in vassalage 60,000,000 people.

Russia has an army of 600,000 men, with a system of reserves sufficient to make quick mobilization of 5,000,000 men. Russia has never been conquered by any European nation, although the Tatars came near becoming the masters of the Slav centuries ago. There is no peace.

Meat canned 3300 years ago was taken from an Egyptian tomb. The stuff must have been put away 1300 years before the coming of the Christian era. And it has been alleged that the inventor of the refrigerator was an American and the inventor of the packing process came on earth under the folds of Old Glory less than 50 years ago. These wise men must have stolen the secrets of the ancients.

Europe's War Sparks Analyzed

How Ruhr Invasion May Push Continent Into New Shambles

THE WORLD'S SIX DANGER POINTS. (1) THE RUHR INDUSTRIAL REGION OF GERMANY WHICH IS BEING OCCUPIED BY FRANCE; (2) MEMEL NEUTRAL ZONE CITY WHICH THE LITHUANIANS HAVE NOW WRESTED FROM PRUSSIAN HANDS; (3) THE RUMANIAN-HUNGARIAN BORDER WHERE CLASHES BETWEEN NATIONALS OF THESE COUNTRIES ARE REPORTED; (4) EASTERN THRACE, CEDED TO TURKEY BY THE MUDANIA ARMISTICE, WHICH GREECE MAY TRY TO RECLAIM BY ARMED FORCE; (5) MOSCOW WHERE THE RED ARMY IS SAID TO BE MOBILIZING; AND (6) ARROW POINTS TOWARD MOSCOW, APPROXIMATELY 800 MILES FROM CONSTANTINOPLE, CLAIMED BY BOTH TURKEY AND BRITAIN, IN THE VICINITY OF WHICH BRITISH AIR PLANES HAVE DROPPED BOMBS.

 Of all the "Old World" "threatening situations" of the moment, the one between France and Germany is the simplest, not in its possibilities of further trouble, but as to immediate cause.

The trouble is just this: Germany insists the allies assessed against her "war" damages to an amount much larger than she can possibly pay. She agreed to them in signing the Versailles treaty because she couldn't help it but she says she hasn't the resources to meet them, so she's in default.

France believes Germany could pay if she would and has taken steps to enforce payment. Belgium is helping her. Italy is helping halfheartedly, doubtful of the French policy's wisdom.

Germany's in a state of violent unrest, as any country which has been invaded by a foreign power's troops would be.

Memel Trouble
 Such outbreaks as have occurred in the occupied territories have been on a small scale, but in the Memel district, in East Prussia, the trouble has been more serious.

Irregulars known as the "iron wolves" have seized the district on behalf of the adjoining war-torn little country of Lithuania.

Memel was under the League of Nations protection, with a small French force in possession. This force has surrendered. However, a French warship, expected in Memel harbor, may turn the tables.

Though nominally Lithuanian fill-busters caused this "situation," many people think Germans are responsible, out of resentment for the Ruhr invasion.

The Poles believe Russia is back of the uprising. Poland, much afraid of her big brother, Russia, is mobilizing certain classes of conscripts.

Hungary in bad luck
 In imitation of France's example in using force to collect the war claims against Germany, Rumania and Yugoslavia, the war-enlarged former kingdom of Serbia, are threatening similar action against Hungary.

Bulgaria, jealous of Rumania, is reported massing troops on the Rumanian frontier, presumably on the theory that it will be a good time to strike a blow on her own account in case the Rumanians and Hungarians should become involved in a quarrel.

All the little countries bordering on Russia are afraid the Soviets would attack them if they became involved in hostilities elsewhere. And there's an underlying fear, rather vague but never forgotten, that Germany might help the Russians in an emergency.

MY STARS
 (An astronomer has come forth with the theory that stars are the result of mating between masculine and feminine elements in space.)

A comet whirled through the realms of space.
 A shining wake behind him.
 He traveled along at a dizzy pace
 With many a tie to bind him;
 Till once, as the comet went whirling by,
 A gay little Pleiad lapped him.
 She winked at him with a bold bright eye,
 And gaily indeed she vamped him.

So the comet paused in his headlong flight
 To flirt with the gleaming Pleiad.
 He found her sparkling and blithe and bright,
 And finally asked, would she add
 Her starry charm to his speed and force

In an astronomical tether?
 "And thus," he said, "we will roam a course
 Through the furthestmost stars together."

The Pleiad nodded a shy assent,
 So off on the trail they started,
 And over the firmament they went
 And never again were parted.
 But little comets and Pleiads came
 From this joyous amalgamation.
 And thus the heavens began to flame
 With a brand new constellation!

A THOUGHT

Castling all your care upon Him,
 For He careth for you.—I Peter 5:7.
 And yet I want Him to care for me
 While I live in this world where for me shadows be.

When the lights die down from the path I take,
 When strength is feeble and friends
 forsake,
 When love and music that once did bless,
 And my life-song changes to sobbing
 prayers,
 Then my heart cries out for a God who careth.

THE MISTAKES OF THE KAISER

By RENE VIVIANI
 Premier of France When the War Broke Out
 Copyright, 1922, BY MCCLURE NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE.
 "LAFAYETTE, WE'RE HERE!"

At last, however, destiny takes unto herself the inequities of justice. At last it seems as if the whole earth were rising up in revolt against such tyranny and injustice. All the nations not under the yoke fall in behind the soldiers of liberty who, encouraged by the generous enthusiasm of America, are finally on the way to securing the welfare of the world.

Already the Emperor of Austria, the King of the Belgians, the Kaiser, have thoughts of scuttling to cover at the very first promontory sign of catastrophe. The iron hand of Germany, which drove the old Emperor of Austria to war, does not loosen its grip on the young Austrian monarch—he who has since died.

Too ominous crumbling sounds announce to the German Emperor the weakness of his throne. Already he has sounded the good will of the Holy See in a ridiculous interview. The Emperor narrates himself in his Memoirs. Already he has turned to America, and, after giving vague answers to President Wilson, when the latter asked in January, 1917, that the belligerents declare their war aims, he has been reduced to countering the honest replies of the Entente with a miserable and flat statement. He did not realize that, in so doing, he disconcerted the chief magistrate of America and the entire American people, lovers of frankness, who had remained unmoved by and deaf to the false promises of Ambassador Bernstorff.

Stupid German pride, as always, underestimated human world, ignorance of what an untrammelled human will can do!

Can America cross the seas and defy the submarines, whose exploits the Kaiser, floating over so many massen, dare extol in his Memoirs? Can Wilson cause spring up, can the pouring torrent of man-power be fed from such distant affluents? After all, Wilson must be merely striking an attitude making a gesture. That is what the Kaiser said to himself in 1917. Well, it was a gesture that Wilson's hand made, but—in that hand there was a sword!

Germany's ignorance of America, the Kaiser and his government failed utterly to understand America, despite the fact that, for millions of German subjects, emancipated by American laws, purified by the healthy air of freedom.

There are different ways of explaining this monstrous ignorance. At the beginning of the war, during the first days of August, 1914, Theodore Roosevelt, that noble and great soldier of the rights of humanity, the champion of the universe, received at his Oyster Bay home, a visit from an official of the German embassy, who had traveled thither from Washington.

"By order of his majesty the German emperor," said this official, "I have come here to recall to you that war has been declared. My master's hopes that you will remember that you have lost his guest."

The insolence of these words betrayed the soul of the parvenu who was sure of dominating the world.

Roosevelt replied coolly: "Yes, my memory is faithful. I remember that I was the guest of his majesty the emperor. But I also remember that I was the guest of his majesty the king of Belgium."

Having received that slap, the German official departed.

Some years later the German under secretary of state, Zimmermann, joking with Ambassador Gerard, who had come in in 1917, to get his passports, said: "Five hundred thousand German living in America can cause you trouble."

"We have five hundred thousand lamp-posts to which we can hang them," answered the American, sure of his countrymen. And Ambassador Bernstorff added to the total of all these foolishnesses by his awkward acts.

This sort of anecdote does not suffice to explain the tremendous outbreak of enthusiasm, sweeping onward like a hurricane, from the Pacific to the Atlantic, and thence to Europe, nevertheless, such tales should be retained in the memory.

When Came Enthusiasm in 1914? In 1917 I had the opportunity, side by side with Marshal Joffre, to witness the vast wave of enthusiasm which shook the American cities.

There arose a tumult of voices like the gale from the legions of liberty. Was this due to some casual whim? When President Wilson was elected, America's entry into the war was far from being an item of the program. But the cruel duration of the war in Europe, the havoc which it caused even in the remotest lands, the sight of liberty being torn to pieces in its struggle against autocracy—all these things inspired in America that infectious question which in December, 1916, "You have been fighting for three years. Why?"

The allies answered, as is well known, by honest statements, repudiating all odious war aims. Germany, though, pretended not to understand, refused to answer, and shrank from entering into debate. From that moment judgment was passed upon her—it was she who had begun the war.

With inconspicuous blindness he realities Germany watched the volition of the American soul.

Whence came, from the month of December, 1916, onward, spreading over the vast expanse of the American continent, that revolution of soul which caused the uprising of the civic cohorts of America, transformed so rapidly into battalions of combatants? Of course, the propaganda conducted by President Wilson was without an equal for daring and skill. And every time that he spoke, with his eyes fixed on the vast horizon of the world, he spoke in the pure and noble accents of democracy. Of course, from the very first day of the war, America had given us proof of her fraternal affection: she had sent some of her sons into the perils of war; she had sacrificed the sons on the battlefields. Never will anyone forget that magnificent outburst of generosity the memory of which breathes again in the history of every one of our campaigns. But the remoteness of the war, the effacing of the sounds of battle by distance and, particularly, the tradition of political isolation incarnated by Washington and Monroe, kept away Americans—though not all of them: far from the fighting.

The main motive which brought America into the war was democracy—democracy, a living thing in England, a symbol of which France is the incarnation; democracy which means respect for civic rights; which is the basis of the Italian constitution; democracy, that noble goal which all of us seek when we stand up in defense of our rights. All this was revealed clearly to Americans of all parties, Republicans as well as Democrats. Economic catastrophe, growing every day more menacing, was advancing upon the world. There was no power on earth which could answer for the solidarity of humanity. And, moreover, in that deadly duel in which blood was flowing in the holy cause in which Lafayette, DeFayette and Rochambeau had risen to greatness, who could be absent without turning a deaf ear to the voice of the world's conscience?

"Thank British and French Honor!"

From the moment that America realized that the world's conscience was affected, that it might be struck down, that autocracy might stride forward to triumph, it was a foregone conclusion that she would rush into the battle. She understood, she rose, so that soon the vast ocean seemed no more than a river. Tell the German ambassador to thank British honor and French honor when he has left our territorial waters. That was the farewell of Mr. Wilson to the German ambassador, conveyed to the latter by Robert Lansing, when he turned over to the ambassador his passports.

What infuriated America was the German government's refusal in 1916 to give a straightforward answer to the formal request addressed to the belligerents by Mr. Wilson. Distress grew apace, and it was even greater at the time of the armistice, when the Kaiser and the chancellor, Prince Max of Baden, tried to enter into discussions. It was borne in upon them that the war was not wanted and they were compelled to betake themselves out of the way—not, however, until they had previously adhered to the famous fourteen points.

This admission, made in sincerity, by Germany, thought that, during the days of the armistice, or at the opening of peace discussions, she might arouse differences among the allies. In fact, the program of Mr. Wilson never bound anybody but the allies and himself. And it may well be said that the peace treaty, in so far as it could, solving as it did insurmountable difficulties, applied the Wilsonian ideas.

The theory of mandates, that noble guardianship which rescued emancipated populations from the oppression of Germany in order to place them under the protection of the league of nations, is an institution worthy of praise. I may add that the Germans, who, in their accusations, reproach Mr. Wilson and the allies for not having applied the fourteen points to the treaty of Versailles, are either deceiving themselves or mixing things up. There are principles contained in the speeches of Mr. Wilson—for instance in his celebrated Mount Vernon speech—which are not to be found in the fourteen points, with which the Germans seek to mix them.

A war wound to the entire nation rushed with all its courage, alone fighting disinterestedly because its conscience so willed, was bound to change in its aspect. At last fate had been mastered! Well had they stood their ground, those first soldiers of 1914 and 1915, those soldiers who fought in mud and snow, who did not despair, who lent courage to all the world! To them should the thought of the survivors be consecrated.

This war illustrated the words of Tocqueville, who, because he had lived long in America, was better acquainted than the men of his day with the resources available to democracy:

"In a war," he said, "between autocracy and democracy, democracy, if it does not succumb in the first shock of battle, will win the victory."

What an admirable and just eulogy of that moral courage which breaks down the strength of the strong!

COSTLY

Our country now has around 12,400,000 autos and motor trucks, the manufacturers report after a check-up.

Meantime the nation is spending $750,000,000 a year on autos. Assuming that roads nowadays are made exclusively for motor traffic, each car is responsible for $60 of the yearly paving bill.

Figuring it another way, $200 of roads are built for each new car manufactured. As long as you're helping pay it, you might as well have a car and wear out your share of the roads.

INTELLIGENCE

Three hundred babies are given, so-called intelligence tests, at a meeting of American Psychological Association.

Just what is intelligence? It certainly is not merely the possession of facts. For the average schoolboy of 1923 knows more concrete facts than did Socrates in the days when science and most of the world were unexplored.

We can have a lot of fact-knowledge without being intelligent. Any bottle can be filled with milk. Real intelligence is in reasoning power, in the ability to distinguish right from wrong and the logically true from the obviously spurious.

Announcement was made at last evening's meeting that Sunday, February 4, would be observed as Christian Endeavor Day in the church. At both morning and evening services special Christian Endeavor sermons will be delivered and at the evening C. E. meeting, Christian Endeavor's birthday will be celebrated.

It is probable that open house will be observed during the late afternoon hours on that day. Plans for this occasion have not been perfected.

MRS. LLOYD ELDREDGE OF 1515 Ninth street has returned after a pleasant visit of several weeks in various Louisiana points.

MRS. HARVEY CREWS OF AR-cola, Ill., who arrived in the city last week to attend the funeral of her brother, W. H. Achey, will remain in Port Arthur several weeks with Mrs. Achey.

MR. AND MRS. J. HARVEY Stevens of Jennings, La., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Carter of 2111 Sixth street.

MISS BOBBIE KING DELIGHT-fully entertained a few of her friends at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. King, the occasion being her fourteenth birthday anniversary. Games and dancing gave diversion to the guests, music being furnished by the piano and victrola. Refreshments of hot chocolate and cake were served.

Enjoying this occasion were Lulu, Minnie, Louise King, Irene Eatin, Louise Grosvenor, Jeanne Crochet, Anna Heriard, Annell Babine, Wilma Patin, Myrtle Mire, Mary Head, Minnie Bollet, Beazie Johnson, Catherine Laury, Ellis Grier, James Adams, L. J. King, L. Oliver, Oscar Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Ascar, Althoff, Jr., R. Patron, O. Moss, and Mrs. J. Cedars, Mr. and Mrs. T. King, Mrs. A. J. Grier, Missie Cedars, and Roy Wilson.

MRS. S. STEVENSON OF Irvington, Texas, district deputy of the Woodmen Circle, will be present at the regular meeting of the women Circle Tuesday evening, in Weinstein building. The meeting will be called to order at 7:30 o'clock, and on account of the important matters to be discussed it is felt that all members will be in attendance.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS PUSS-IN-BOOTS

By Olive Roberts Burton

Dusty Coat sprinkled a little powder on his tail as he passed and he turned into Puss-in-Boots at once.

Dreamland was a queer place but just the same everybody had a good time.

Sandy and Nick and Dusty Coat saw to that. With a pinch of his magic dust there, the little fairy sandman did wonderful things.

One thing he did was this. After they had played school for awhile, everybody got tired and wanted to play something else.

"Let's play 'Pussie Wants a Corner,'" called out Wally Woodhull.

"All right! Who'll be pussie?" said Nancey.

Instantly Jack Jumping Mouse said, "Oh, no, no, no! Please don't!" and nearly shivered his tail off.

And Chick Chimmunk said, "Oh, no, no, no! Please don't!" and nearly shivered his ears off.

"Oh, we won't hurt you!" declared Dusty Coat. "Because I'm going to change him. When he comes to Dreamland I'll stand beside the gate and sprinkle him with some of my magic powder, and instantly he will turn into a black patent leather Puss-in-Boots, just as Buster Brown Bear turned into a Teddy Bear when he came to Dreamland. Puss-in-Boots has a kind heart and wouldn't hurt anybody. No one ever hurts anyone else in Dreamland—that is why I brought you all here."

"Oh, all right!" agreed everybody. So Dusty Coat said a charm:

"Puss in your corner,
Like little Jack Horner,
Oh, please to shut your eye,
And when you're asleep,
Off to Dreamland green,
You'll get here by and by."

Almost instantly Caesar the Cat entered the little rose gate to Dreamland. Dusty Coat sprinkled a little powder on his tail as he passed, and he turned into Puss-in-Boots at once. He bowed to everybody. He was as shiny as a new over-shoe. He was a real cat, red boots and a brave white ruffe around his neck.

GRANT REFUSES TO OBEY BISHOP

Rector Sunday Pleads for Unshackled Clergy

By United Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The Rev. Percy Stuckney Grant today refused to obey orders of Bishop William T. Manning that he recall his assertions, Jesus did not have the power of God or resign his rectorate of the Episcopal church of the Ascension.

Before crowds that jammed the church while thousands stood outside unable to get in, Dr. Grant yesterday reiterated his views that religion must be simplified. His audience, among which were many curious as well as religious worshippers, broke loose time and again in storms of applause.

Faces Heresy Trial

The sermon was interpreted by many of Dr. Grant's followers as an intimation that the rector expects to be tried for heresy for his beliefs.

At almost the same time, Bishop Manning spoke in Newhaven to Yale students, taking as his text, "The faithful unto death," and pleading for loyalty to the church, and Grant's assertion that Christ did not perform miracles was subject of comment in the country. Not only did Dr. Grant "stand by his guns" as to previous utterances, but amid applause he declared anew—a thing without precedent in the austere and fashionable church—he amplified them.

Says Apostles Support Him

Sometimes with fighting demeanor and then almost abashed he declared he was supported in his views by the apostles, Matthew, Mark and Luke.

He asked his hearers whether they wanted a church that believes in freedom rather than authority—an unshackled clergy, permitting the minister to speak the truth, and answered:

"Then have them!"

SCHEDULE OF AMUSEMENTS MONDAY

Peoples: Agnes Ayres starring in "A Daughter of Luxury."
Strand: Musical comedy and Helene Chadwick featured in "The Dust Flower."
Pearce: "What's Wrong With the Women," featuring an all star cast.
Liberty: Richard Talmadge in "Putting it Over."

TUESDAY
Peoples: "A Daughter of Luxury," featuring Agnes Ayres.
Strand: Musical comedy; and "The Dust Flower," with Helene Chadwick featured.
Pearce: "What's Wrong With the Women," featuring an all star cast.
Liberty: Priscilla Dean starring in "Wild Honey."

SNAPPY BILL AT STRAND

The Norman High Speed company presented one of their most entertaining bills yesterday at the Strand. It abounded in comedy, new specialties; of special mention was the one of the toe dancer, Jean Bordeaux, a very clever little bit of femininity. The High Speed Trio took several calls, rendering catchy song hits. Dooley and Golden, the comedians, seemed to excel in their comedy roles, keeping the house in a continuous laugh throughout. The chorus were as peppy, first stepping ponies of the ballet. The feature picture running with this is Helene Chadwick in "The Dust Flower."

"WHAT'S WRONG WITH THE WOMEN?"

In the picture drama, "What's Wrong With the Women" which opened a four-day engagement at the Pearce today, the question is asked and answered that is tantalizing the country today. It is an indictment of jazz—an indictment of the causing for excitement among the flapper set and the younger married women. The author gets right down to the psychology of the jazz question. He doesn't evade any issue, but touches surely and accurately upon the reason for restlessness among the gentler sex.

AGNES AYRES

A wholesome, entertaining comedy-drama is "A Daughter of Luxury." Agnes Ayres latest starring vehicle which opened a three day engagement at the Peoples Theatre yesterday before a large and pleased audience.

The picture conveys no moral message, but it fulfills the prime purpose of any good picture—entertainment and amusement of its audiences. It runs smoothly and by nature of its treatment is not overdone or too illogical to be convincing. The story has situations that might easily be interpreted as melodramatic, but they are so handled as to keep them in the lighter vein.

"WILD HONEY"

There are many keys to romance. The ending of a love affair—or rather, the ending of the preliminaries and the beginning of real happiness—may be shown in a photograph in a hundred clever ways. But it is a unique development that brings about the culmination of everything in the beautiful romance of Lady Vivienne in "Wild Honey," the Universal-Triumph production which has brought Priscilla Dean in a stellar role to the Liberty Theatre tomorrow.

Kerry Burgess, the man in love with her, finds some wild honey in a fallen tree and brings it to her. A bee angrily follows and stings her on the lip! It is a Cupid's moment.

MANY BALES GINNED

ELGIN, Texas, Jan. 22.—There were 22,428 bales of cotton, counting round bales as half bales, ginned in Bastrop county to Jan. 1, 1923, as compared with 11,248 bales ginned to Jan. 1, 1922.

TREES TO BE PLANTED

EL CAMPO, Texas, Jan. 22.—Arrangements are being made to plant the school grounds with trees and shrubbery. Since the completion of the new building the need of more trees has become apparent.

295 TAKE OUT FIRST PAPERS

Port Arthur Furnishes 58, Beaumont 186

Special to The News.

BEAUMONT, Texas, Jan. 22.—During the past sixty days 295 foreigners have declared their intention of becoming citizens of the United States. Port Arthur furnishes 58 of that number, Beaumont lead with 186, balance of Jefferson county, 10, Orange 37, DeWitt 2, Silsbee 2, Kirbyville 1 and Jasper 1.

Italy lead by far all other countries combined, furnishing 158 out of the number. Syria 43, Greece 9, Germany 9, England 7, Holland 3, Russia 5, Poland 4, Turkey 4, Austria 3, Norway 3, Canada 2, Denmark 2, Hungary 1, Ireland 1, Spain 1, Roumania 1, Bulgaria 1, Scotland 1, Brazil 1, Sweden 1, Asia Minor 1, and two born in the United States who had to become naturalized on account of marrying foreigners.

These statistics show that 112 of the emigrants went into the mercantile business in one form or another. There were 63 laborers, 31 farmers, 25 housewives, nine mechanics, eight shoemakers, seven restaurantmen six clerk, four peddlers, four bakers, three retired men, two seamen two bricklayers, two salesmen, two railroad men, one barber, one truck driver, one candy maker, one dairyman, one kennelman and one jailor.

FIREMEN ELECT

GEORGETOWN, Texas, Jan. 22.—The Georgetown volunteer fire department elected the following officers to serve the ensuing year: D. K. Wilcox, president; Oscar Fahrhold, vice-president; P. J. Goodlett, chief; George Gealey, assistant chief; Albert Evans secretary; W. R. Mood, treasurer; Ernest Milham, doorkeeper.

Child Health Clinics At New Red Cross Hut To Be Held in Future

In the future the Child Health Clinics will be held at the Red Cross hut, Fifth and Dallas avenue. Miss Martha Lawless, public health nurse, announced today.

The Health Clinics will be held each Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with Dr. M. Sweeney in charge. All children brought to the health clinic will be examined and vaccinations for caring for children will be given each week. All mothers in the city are requested to attend the clinics each Wednesday afternoon, officials said.

First Clash of Aggie-Good Gulf Basketball Games Tonight at 7:30

AGGIES ARRIVE IN HIGH HOPES OF A VICTORY

Expect Large Crowd for Game Tonight

Despite the inclement weather, the Aggie Freshmen from Texas A. & M. College arrived here at 11 o'clock this morning ready to look horns tonight with the Good Gulf basketball squad for the first of a two-game series.

The game will be staged in Franklin gym at 7:30 o'clock, rain or shine, as Manager J. M. Pickett announced early today.

With a host of stouter cage artists in their lineup, and with intentions of annihilating the Good Gulf contingent, the Freshmen Aggies plan to invade Franklin court in whirlwind style tonight.

Speaking this morning of the prospects for tonight's clash, Manager Pickett of the Gulfers declared he is expecting a record crowd.

The A. & M. Freshmen football team which invaded Port Arthur during the football season, and held the local players to a tie displayed some wonderful tactics, and it is rumored that the Fish basketball squad sent here today for the two-game series is just as strong on the court. This fact is counted to be a strong drawing card for the clash.

The second game of the series will be played tomorrow night at Franklin gym, special seating capacity for both opponents having been arranged by the management of the local players.

The two contests with A. & M. will be the third and fourth basketball games at home this season for the Good Gulf five, the two first games having been victories.

It is probable that Coach L. O. Smith (Nebraska) of the Port Arthur high school will referee the game, although no definite announcement to this effect has been made.

The lineup of the Good Gulfers, was announced this morning as follows: Captain Kaykendall at center, Peffy and Hester at forward and Smith and Atkins as guards.

This is the same line with which Coach "Tollu" Forbes entered the lists at Houston, carrying off the title of the Houston Triangles and losing to Y. M. C. A. The same lineup has been seen in action here before, and has drawn praise from all angles, having gained a wide reputation for hurling and defending baskets against every opponent they have met.

Yankee Infield Not A Pennant Winner

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The infield of the New York Yankees is far from being the class that one expects of a pennant winner.

Joe Dugan at third is perhaps the most valuable player in the American League at that position. The Yankees, however, cannot do much bragging about the other three positions.

Scout, at short, is going back fast. The Yankees must find a successor for him within the next few years.

Ward at second, is a good mechanical player, but prone to pull some costly mistakes at the most inopportune time.

Pipp, at first, was one of the most valuable players on the Yankees last season, despite the fact that he has been on the market for several years. Pipp ranks next to Dugan in value.

Incidentally the outfield of the Yankees is nothing to brag about. If the ranks are to repeat in 1923 the pitchers will have to carry much of the burden.

Tamale Rancher Out For Champion's Crown

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—It comes to pass that a robust young tamale rancher from the trackless pampas of the Argentine, shall retard the ambitions of all these heavy boxers, who clamor now for the wilting laurels of Jack, the most high Dempsey.

It is the harvest season in the Tamale country. From misery born to dewy eve, Luis Angelo Pippo, astride his prancing dandazo of native mulch-estrich, rides far across his opulent acres, calling the gangs of touting frijoles, or serfs, to another reaping of the succulent tamale.

And until the harvest is done the progress of pugilism must wait.

Pippo will have to be seen and tested before it can truly be said that this man or that holds clear title to the honor of munching a sor of the Most High Dempsey's laurels in a heavyweight championship fight next summer.

Then Louis Angelo-Pippo, the hairy hurricane from the Argentine, will take ship for New York, where the big prizefighters come for their big money. This should put him on Broadway by the latter part of February, where progress may resume where it left off.

Tor Rickard claims that the obnoxious match for Dempsey is Willard, and if not Willard, then Gibbons. Meantime Pippo is to fight Floyd Johnson, who beat Large Bill Brennan.

BOXING PROGRAM FOR NEW ORLEANS COMPLETE

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 22.—Al Ruka, chairman of the Eagles' committee in charge of the boxing contests to be staged at the Coliseum, January 29, has practically completed the card.

Thos. Colletti and Bobby Hughes will meet in one ten-rounder, Bill Kennedy and Frankie DeLari in another, and Ernie Perlin and Tommy Martin in the third.

Ed Carlin, the Tennessee sensation, will meet one of the local bantams in a six-round bout.

St. Louis Player Sold to San Antonio In Baseball Trade

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Jan. 22.—Outfielder Phil Todd, property of the St. Louis Americans, last season with Columbus in the American Association, has been secured by the San Antonio club of the Texas League as part pay for Third Baseman Homer Ezzell, whom San Antonio sends to the Browns for a trial in the spring.

Todd played in only 85 games last season and hit .273. The season before, he batted .308 for Tulsa in the Western League and made 28 home runs. He shipped out a dozen homers last year. The Browns are now through adding outfielders. President Pearson says as a collection which includes Todd, Boone, Boone and Myers looks good enough.

ENTRY BLANKS PREPARED FOR FAMOUS RACE

Expect More European Cars To Compete This Year

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 22.—Entry blanks for the eleventh annual 500-mile international sweepstakes for a purse of $50,000 to be held on the Indianapolis motor speedway on May 30, have been sent broadcast by T. L. Myers, secretary and general manager of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway company who has just returned to Indianapolis from the winter of weeks in Europe in the interest of the annual classic. He states that in making a survey of the possible European and American entries for this event he believes there will be more cars entered than in any years since the inception of the five-century classic, which will mean that only the 22 specified of the field can start in the battle for the big purse and that it will be the hardest fought race in history.

International Field.

"While it is too early," says Myers, "to announce what cars will be entered or who the probable drivers will be, the motor race fans can be assured that the field for the 1923 race will be more truly international than any of the 10 preceding races."

THE THING ON THE HEARTH

Begin Here Today.

Did some occult power of the Orient cause the mysterious and incredible tragedy which had removed from the world one of its greatest intelligences—the brain of RODMAN, who had startled scientists with his paper on the manufacture of precious stones by synthetic chemistry?

Rodman was dead. His attendant, that strange Oriental from the Shan monastery in Asia, told a story weird and incredible. Finally, M. JONQUELLE, greatest of French detectives, was called to America and the Oriental rehearsed the story of what took place on the night when the man who could manufacture rubies and emeralds as cheaply as glass met his death.

Go on With the Story
CHAPTER III

The Oriental was going on with a slow precise articulation as though he would thereby make a difficult matter clear.

"The night had fallen swiftly. It was incredibly silent. There was no sound in the Master's room, and no light except the flicker of the logs smoldering in the fireplace. The thin line of it appeared faintly along the sill of the door."

"He paused.

"The fireplace, Excellency, is at the end of the great room, directly opposite this door into the hall, before which I always sat when the Master was within. The fireplace is of black marble with an immense black-marble hearth. And the gift which I had brought—the Master stands on one side of the fire, on this marble hearth, as though it were a single auditorium."

"The man turned back into the heart of his story.

"I knew by the vague sense of pressure that the devotion of the thing were again on the way. And I began to suffer in the spirit for the Master's safety. Intense, both by not and by the will, were denied me. But there is an anxiety of spirit, Excellency, that the uncertainty of an issue makes intolerable."

"The pressure continued—and the silence. It was nearly midnight. I could not distinguish any act or motion of the Master, and in fear I crept over to the door and looked in through the crevice along the threshold.

"The Master sat by his table; he was straining forward, his hands gripping the arms of his chair. His eyes and every tense instinct of the man were concentrated on the fireplace. The red light of the embers was in the room. I could see him clearly, and the table beyond him with the calculations; but the fireplace seemed strangely out of perspective—it extended above me.

"My gift to the Master, not more than four hundred in length, including the base, stood now like an immense bronze on an extended marble slab beside a gigantic fireplace. This effect of expansion put the top of the fireplace and the enlarged andirons, above the pedestal, out of my line of vision. Everything else in the chamber, holding its normal dimensions, was visible to me.

"I have said, Excellency, that my angle of vision along the crevice of the door was sharply cut midway of this vast enlarged fireplace. From the direction and lift of the Master's face, he was watching something above this line and directly over the pedestal of the andirons. I watched, also, flattening my face against the sill, for the thing to appear.

"And it did appear.

"A naked foot became slowly visible, as though someone were descending with extreme care from the elevation of the andirons to the great marble hearth, under this strange enlargement, now some distance below."

"The big Oriental paused, and looked down at me.

"I knew then, Excellency, that the Master was lost! The creative energies of the Spirit suffer no division of worship; those of the body must be wholly denied. I had warned the Master, and in travail, Excellency, I turned over with my face to the floor.

"But there is always hope, hope over the certainties of experience, over the certainties of knowledge. Perhaps the Master, who had sustained in the spirit, would put away the devotion. No, Excellency, I was not misled. I knew the Master was beyond hope! But the will to hope more, and I turned back to the crevice, at the doorsill."

"He paused.

"There was now a delicate odor, everywhere, faintly, like the blossom of the little bitter apple here in your country. The red embers in the fireplace gave out a steady light; and in the glow of it, on the marble hearth, stood the one who had descended from the elevation of the andirons."

"Again the man hesitated, as for an accurate method of expression.

"In the flesh, Excellency, there was color that would not appear in the image. The hair was yellow and the eyes were blue; and against the black marble of the fireplace the body was conspicuously white.

"But in every other aspect of her Excellency the woman was in the flesh as she is in the clutch of the savage male figure in the image."

"There is no dress or ornament, as you will recall, Excellency. Not even an ear-jewel or an anklet, as though the graver of the image felt that the inherent beauty of his figure could take nothing from these ostentations.

"The woman's heavy, yellow hair was wound around her head, as in the image. She shivered a little, faintly, like a naked child in an unaccustomed draught of air, although she stood on the warm, marble hearth

"and within the red glow of the fire. The voice from the male figure of the image, which I had brought the Master, and which stood as an auditor, now so immensely enlarged, was beginning again to speak, thin metallic sound seemed to pierce against the dense silence, as went forward in the ritual presence."

"But the Master had already closed; he stood now on the great marble hearth with his papers crumpled together. And as I looked through the crevice under the sill, he put out his free hand and his finger touched the woman's. The flesh under his finger yielded and stooping over, he put the form into the fire."

"Like one who has come to the end of his story, the huge Oriental stepped out, for some moment, then he continued in an evanescent voice:

"I got up from the floor then, purified myself with water. And as I went into an upper chamber, opened the window to the air and sat down to write my report to the authorities. For the thing which I had been sent to do was finished. He put his hand somewhere in the loose folds of his Oriental robe and brought out a roll of vellum-like, onion-skin, painted Chinese characters. It was of immense length, but on account of the thinness of the vellum, the wound on a tiny cylinder of vellum was not above two inches in thickness."

"Excellency," he said, "I have carefully concealed this report through the misfortunes that I attended me. It is not certain I shall be able to deliver it. You give it for me to the merchant Vanderlick, in America. He will send it to Mahadal in B. bag, and it will go north with caravans."

"I put the scroll into my pocket, went out, for a motor-car had called into the park, and I knew that Jonquelle had arrived."

"I met Jonquelle and the superintendent in the long corridor; they been looking in at my interview through the elevated grating.

"Jonquelle," I cried, "the judge right to cut short the criminal trial and issue a lunacy warrant. A creature is the maddest lunatic this whole asylum. The human mind capable of any absurdity."

Jonquelle looked at me with queer, ironical smile.

"Perhaps," he shrugged, "there some explanation in the report your pocket, to the Monastic. It's only a theory, you know."

He smiled, showing his white, e teeth.

"We went into the superintendent's room, and sat down by a smolder fire of coals in the grate. I had Jonquelle the roll of vellum. It was in one of the Shan dialects. He it aloud. With the addition of certain formal expressions, it contained precisely the Oriental's testimony for the court and no more.

"Ah!" he said in his curiously steeled voice.

"And he held the scroll out to me, and as it bled, the bl Chinese characters faded out a faint blue ones began to appear.

Jonquelle read the secret mess in his emotionless drawl:

"The American is destroyed, his accursed work is destroyed with him. Send the news to Bangkok to west to Burma. The treasures India are saved."

I cried out in astonishment.

"An assassin! The creature was assassin! He killed Rodman simply by crushing him in his arms!"

Jonquelle's drawl lengthened.

"It's Lal Gupta," he said.

"Cleverest Oriental in the whole Asia. The jewel-trader sent him watch Rodman, and to kill him if was ever able to get his form worked out. They must have been his hidden motives."

"And that is why the creature lashed himself to Rodman?" I said.

"Surely," replied Jonquelle, "brought that bronze—Rodman's ring, off the Sabina woman—stared the supernatural to work his plan, and to save his life. I know the bronze as soon as I got my present to Mahadal in Bombay matching up some rubies."

I was bitterly.

"I gave him for a lunatic."

"Ah, yes!" replied Jonquelle. "What was it you said as I came 'The human mind is capable of absurdity!'"

Another M. Jonquelle story. "Fortune Teller" will begin in next issue.
